Freshmen Orientation

Freshmen came to Lehigh during those last hot days of August. Lehigh's newest crop of freshmen bid farewell to their families and entered upon a new life here at Lehigh. Freshmen Orientation and those first weeks of classes before exams are a lot like summer camp—new faces, new experiences, and the fresh perspective of living away from home. The routine of Lehigh gradually sets in for new freshmen and paves the way for some of the best times of their lives.

A New Era Murray H. Goodman Stadium

Lehigh students said goodbye to old Taylor Stadium in 1987 and welcomed a new beginning with the Murray H. Goodman Stadium to start out the '88 home football season this fall. Located in Saucon Valley at the Murray H. Goodman campus, the new stadium has been described as one of the finest in the Northeast. The stadium's design utilizes a natural bowl in the earth and is surrounded by vast fields and a picturesque view of South Mountain. The area around the stadium is well suited for tailgating and mingling before (or during) the game. Mr. Goodman came to Lehigh for the stadium's dedication ceremonies held at the Lehigh/Cornell game. He joined thousands of Lehigh fans to cheer the Engineers on to victory. Thanks Murray!

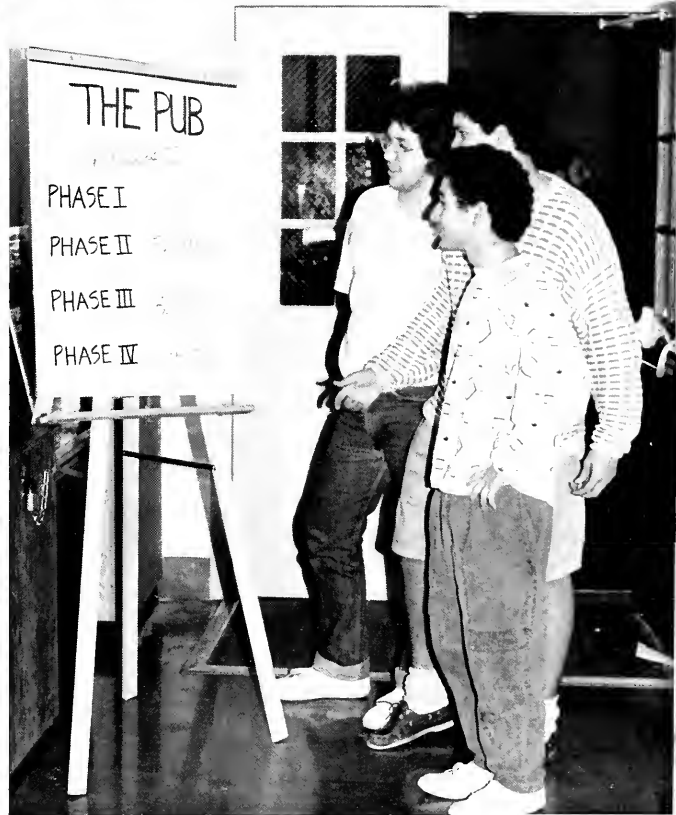

Act 31 hit Pennsylvania over the summer, and, as a consequence, Lehigh students saw some drastic changes to their social lifestyles. The days of free-flowing beer for all on the Hill became memories as the school changed its policies in accordance with the new law. Fraternities continued to hold parties, but they were required to hire security guards to check students' identification and to prevent underage drinking. The University also opened a new pub—"Club 31"—in order to give Lehigh students a non-alcoholic social alternative. "Club 31" is located in the University Center. It serves food and drinks and offers a variety of entertainment nightly.

A farewell message from the President

As members of the Class of '89, you demonstrated remarkable capacity to deal responsibly with change during your Lehigh years, and that speaks well for your future prospects in a rapidly changing world. I predict even more success for this class than is typical at Lehigh, where the normal expectation for achievement is high indeed.

As the years go by, please remember that the lessons of life at Lehigh include the realization that responsibility goes with success, in whatever form you find it. Remember that these lessons include respect and compassion for others, as well as the cultivation of a healthy competitive spirit. What you have learned here will serve you well, as many thousands have been served before you. It is your responsibility now to use your energy, talent and education to serve others, even as you reap the rewards of the Lehigh experience.

In grateful memory,

Aerospace Studies (A.F.R.O.T.C.)

Through the Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps program, the Aerospace Department develops future Air Force officers from talented motivated students. The program combines challenging academic courses, a rigorous physical fitness program and Leadership Laboratory. Through this program, our students can meet the challenges of tomorrow's Air Force.

Several new members joined the staff this year. They include the department chairman, Colonel John W. Jahn II, two new assistant professors, Captain Kenneth J. McArthur and Captain David P. Pletcher and the new NCOIC of Administration, Staff Sergeant Anthony J. Urso. These new faces and the "old hands" provided an excellent mix of enthusiasm and experience to lead the cadet corps.

The cadet corps of the 1988-1989 academic year was 80 students strong. The cadets were very active. They sponsored the Air University Briefing Team. The team presented briefings on the Air Force role in national security strategy. The corps held several functions honoring our veterans. In September, they sponsored a 24-hour Prisoner of War/Missing in Action freedom run. Opened to all members of the university and local community, over 80 runners covered the two mile course throughout the vigil. On Veterans Day, the cadets conducted a flag raising ceremony at the University Center flagpole. In a special ceremony, the cadets were privileged to present to Mr. Wayne O. Smith the Prisoner of War Medal in honor of the six years he spent as a prisoner of war during the Viet Nam conflict.

On the social scene, the cadets sponsored several activities. They conducted several pizza and volleyball nights. They also held receptions for both the freshmen and upperclassmen parent's weekends. In the best of military tradition, the corps' dining-in was the social event of the year.

The department's program is very demanding. The cadets' hard work make the program a success.

The Military Science Department conducts the Army Reserve Officers' Training Corps program at Lehigh University. The Army ROTC program, which was established at Lehigh in 1919, offers a means for students to receive commissions as officers in the United States Army. The ROTC program, established across the country, was begun in large part as a result of the efforts of Lehigh President Henry Drinker. Following a proud tradition, the program at Lehigh includes over 200 students and commissions about 30 officers each year. In 1988-89 over 60 students were completing their studies with Army ROTC full scholarships. The department is dedicated to train the highest quality officers from a body of the highest quality students.

If you read these blurbs, we'll wager you thought this was going to be a puff piece. What more can you say about an academic department so caring, so concerned with their students and with the quality of their teaching. In other words, a group of reactionaries — modern, post-modern, pre-modern and post-post-modern.

Summer of '88 saw the launching of the Lehigh/Paris Program with some of our students seeing Paris for the first time, under the tutelage of Ivan Zaknic. Nick Adams returned to us this fall from his year at the American Academy in Rome. A notable event for fall 1988 was the visit for six weeks of Mr. Cao Yingye, an artist from the Peoples Republic of China, who spoke on and demonstrated traditional Chinese painting, visited classes and made us aware of the ancient and venerable culture of China.

And as this is the last Epitome in which Mary Ellen Orben will appear, we would like to thank her for her 18 years of caring and tending for this department. Some of us may fade from students memories as they look back on their years here, but most will remember Mrs. Orben, her constantly full candy bowl, her help at pre-registration and her willingness to stop, listen and give friendly advice. She is always the first to speak, however quietly about our students needs: "As this is the last Epitome I will be in as a member of the Department of Art and Architecture, I would like to say that it has been a privilege for me to work at Lehigh and in the Department of Art and Architecture. The faculty has always been respectful of me, but what I would like to make known is that our faculty is very aware of the fact that they are here to teach. When I came in 1970 you could count the majors on one hand without using all the fingers. Now the record speaks for itself. Limited enrollment classes are a necessity, not a desire."

The biological sciences have been characterized as that science in the late twentieth century experiencing the greatest change. The Department of Biology at Lehigh reflects that sense of vitality associated with change: new faculty recruited, expanded facilities on the Mountaintop, out-dated courses dropped, labs renovated in Williams Hall, new instructional programs introduced at Lake Lacawac, research funding sought and acquired, curriculum revisions advanced, extensive research equipment acquired, research activity increased, educational foundations approached, new leadership chosen, substantive seminar program implemented, resources for marine programs at the New Jersey Wetlands committed, student-oriented activities emphasized. This montage accurately produces the image of change so characteristic of the discipline.

Under the leadership of Department Chairperson (since 1981) G. Doyle Daves, Jr., the Chemistry Department has sought to build up existing research strengths in organic chemistry and surface science and to expand in the biochemical science area. To that end, eight new faculty have been added since 1982 - Professors Alhadeff, Behe and Lowe-Krentz in biochemical science, Professors Larsen and Regen in organic, Professors Foster and Roberts in nuclear magnetic resonance applications and Professor Klebanoff in surface science. Professor Daves stepped down as department chairperson in July 1988 and was replaced by Henry Leidheiser, Jr., long-time faculty member and former head of Lehigh's Center for Surface and Coatings Research. Since Professor Leidheiser will retire in 1-2 years, a search is occurring for a new department chairperson.

The transfer of the Chemistry Department from the College of Engineering and Applied Sciences to the College of Arts and Science in July 1987, has sparked a revision of undergraduate programs which will apply to the class that entered September 1988. These include new B.S. pre-professional degree programs in chemistry and biochemistry, which will parallel existing (and maintained) programs in the Engineering College and a new B.A. chemistry program which is not pre-professional and is in keeping with the spirit of major programs in the Arts College which typically require ca. 30 hours in the major area.

The department has been graduating only 10-20 undergraduates in all major programs in recent years but must teach high-enrollment courses in introductory, organic and physical chemistry to service other departments. The department is, therefore, making every effort to maintain quality teaching in these courses and keeping them "fresh" by rotating teaching assignments among faculty with proven records of good teaching and by careful screening of incoming graduate students who are offered teaching assistantships.

"I never met a mineral I didn't like" Sclar, Dale "It's a personal world — if you don't like it there's something wrong with you" Simpson, Ken "Are we having fun yet?" Kodama, Peter "Reunite Gondwanaland" Zeitler, Dave "Let's go see one more outcrop before midnight" Anastasio, Carl "Where are you really?" Moses, and Ed "mammalated topography" Evenson. We have a great graduate student program — join them for popcorn and "Beverage" following Friday afternoon seminars. ## International Relations

The Department of International Relations assists students who wish to study abroad. There are established programs in London, Paris, Geneva and Vienna.

An exciting feature is the Cohen International Lecture Series which brings distinguished speakers to the campus each year. Previous speakers have included Lord Carrington, Secretary-General of NATO and former National Security Advisor Zbigniew Brzezinski.

Professor Rajan Menon is on leave of absence at the George F. Kennan Institute in Washington. Professor Menon was awarded a fellowship at the Institute as well as a grant from the Council on Foreign Relations in New York.

Professor Oles Smolansky gave several lectures in Washington to State Department personnel and members of the defense community.

Professor Ray Wylie organized a major conference at Lehigh for members of the East Asian Studies Association.

Professor Bruce Moon delivered a paper at the annual meeting of the International Studies Association.

Journalism

The Journalism Department got a fresh coat of paint this year, but the changes are more than just skin deep.

The office, in the basement of the University Center, underwent renovations this summer to be finished just in time for the start of the fall semester. New carpeting, furniture and a few coats of beige and burgundy paint have brightened up the place and made us look as professional as we are.

Speaking of being professional, the new, more demanding curriculum that went into effect this year added three new courses, but allows students more flexibility in choosing their program. One important change was the addition of a mandatory three credit internship.

The department's already strong academic program in news/editorial, science writing and public relations was further enhanced this year with the addition of oral communication. Assistant Professor Dina Wills, who previously was the lone speech faculty member in the old Division of Speech and Theater, joined the department to help link oral communication with journalism.

Even a strong academic curriculum needs the latest and best teaching tools. The two computer labs are constantly in use as journalists learn up-to-date techniques of the communication age such as word processing, desk-top publishing and electronic role playing.

With the help of a grant from General Motors, the department's own computer "guru," Associate Professor Wally Trimble, who has single handedly set up and kept running the computer networking systems in the labs, helped to develop a reporting scenario program. The game requires students to make appropriate choices in a disaster situation, while working against a computer clock, and leave enough time in the end to write a story before deadline.

Department Chairperson Professor Sharon Friedman and her husband Adjunct Professor Ken Friedman, were busy this year visiting Thailand in January 1988 and co-authoring a United Nations handbook for environmental journalists in Southeast Asia. Carole Gorney was awarded tenure this year as associate professor just in time for her accomplishments in public relations to be recognized by the Lehigh Valley Chapter of the IABC. Graham Fysh left the department to return to newspapers full time. He is now business editor for The Morning News Tribune in Tacoma, Washington, and says he is very happy there. The department also welcomed Visiting Assistant Professor Frankie Hutton for the year.

Although so much has happened in the past year, all the changes have still left Linda Lipko, our academic coordinator, without a window.

Modern Foreign Languages

The Modern Foreign Language Department is into its second year of the language requirement, and is thriving with many new students. Most of our interested students combine foreign language study with fields like foreign careers, business and international relations. We have teaching assistants from abroad teaching for us and have sent new graduates abroad to teach English. Study abroad in the summer is also popular, and there are many programs to choose from including Lehigh's own and LVAIC programs. Our Foreign Study Scholarship Committee each year awards scholarships to deserving students to help support their study for a summer, a semester or a year abroad. Students have been enjoying our new VCR in the language laboratory in Coppee Hall. It is being used to show films and for video teaching programs.

This year the faculty has instituted a new Faculty Colloquium so that members can share with each other their current research. Dr. Marie-Sophie Armstrong (French) who instituted the program was our first speaker and Dr. Peter Musolf (German) the second. Drs. David W. Lewis (French), David Pankenier (Chinese) and Chair Anna P. Herz (Russian) are to be congratulated for receiving a prestigious NEH award to develop and expand Chinese and Russian studies in the department. Dr. Marie Helene-Chabut (French) is Visiting Assistant Professor with us this year, on leave from the University of Vermont. Dr. Antonio Prieto (Spanish) represents us on the Latin American Studies Committee that sponsored lectures and film showings. The faculty were represented at the Modern Language Association meetings in December in New Orleans. Drs. Musolf and Chabut presented papers, Dr. Herz was present as a member of the committee developing a new program for the annual international MLA Bibliography, and Dr. Lenora D. Wolfgang as a Middle Atlantic States Regional Delegate.

Philosophy

The Philosophy Department continues to flourish. The cottage is bursting at the seams, with Steve Goldman having taken up residence with us. We continue to discuss philosophy with each other continuously with interest and profit. All of us have been involved in publishing books and articles. The most recent book is by Ralph Lindgren on Sex Discrimination and the Law, 1988. The Philosophy Club is the strongest it has been in recent history. It has met every week to discuss topics from "Blissful Ignorance" to "Morality." The club went on a "reading party" in the spring to an early 18th Century house in North West Connecticut. We discussed several movies, including Blue Velvet and Platoon, in conjunction with some readings from

Jean-Paul Satre.

We have introduced courses taught by members of the department in Engineering Ethics, Cognitive Science, Modernism and Post-Modernism, Kierkegaard and Nietzsche and the Advanced Philosophy of Religion.

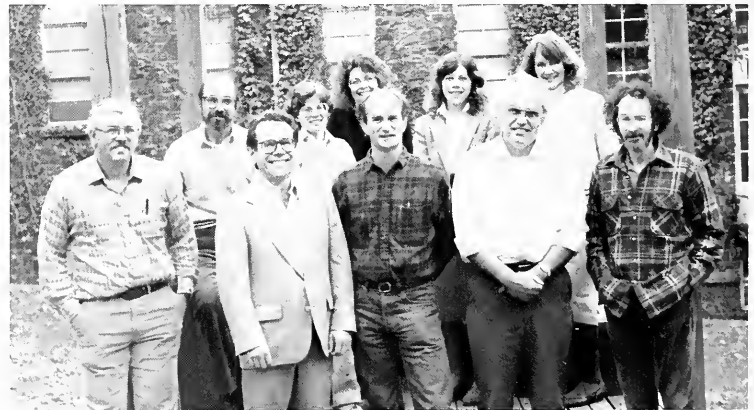

Our Selfridge lecturer this year was Daniel Dennett, an international figure in Cognitive Science. He gave four faculty seminars, two public lectures, and met several times with students. He was impressively stimulating throughout the visit.

The number of majors and minors and the enrollment in our courses has increased dramatically over the past few years. We attribute this mostly to the excellence of our department, but there may be other causes! Perhaps the mood of the times has changed so that the traditional disciplines can again be seen as preparing students for flexible productive and intellectually rewarding lives.

Socrates said, "The unexamined life is not worth living."

The Psychology Department, which has the greatest number of majors and the greatest number of minors in the Arts and Science College, also has one of the fastest growing graduate programs in the College. A dedicated group of 11 faculty keeps at the leading edge of their particular fields by conducting research and presenting their work at major scientific conferences. A broad range of courses is offered in basic psychology as well as in the areas of biopsychology, cognition and learning, developmental, personality, experimental and abnormal psychology. Located in historical Chandler-Ullman Hall, we have ample space and state-of-the art facilities for upper-class undergraduate students to acquire valuable firsthand experience in the Child Development Laboratory, the Cognitive Laboratory, the Biopsychology Research Facility and the Phobia Research Program, etc. Also offered is a departmental honors program in which seniors can work on project to allow in-depth psychological study beyond that permitted by normal coursework.

The BA in psychology provides preparation for a variety of different fields. In addition to serving as a preparational degree for further study in psychology, our programs prepare graduates to go on to graduate school in social work, special education, medical and dental school and law school. The minor in psychology is often used in conjunction with degrees in marketing, international relations and other fields. In summary, the Psychology Department faculty is committed to helping students achieve their full potential.

The Physics Department at Lehigh is a moderately large, research oriented, department which also plays a significant role in the undergraduate program. The department is located in the Sherman Fairchild Center for Physical Sciences. This complex includes the Sherman Fairchild Laboratory for Solid State Studies, the renovated five-story Physics Building, and a major wing which connects these two buildings and houses research and teaching space. The department offers several large service courses to undergraduates in both the Engineering and Arts and Science Colleges. Each year, approximately 1200 students are enrolled in one of these introductory courses. In addition, the department offers four undergraduate degrees: B.A. and B.S. in the College of Arts and Science; B.S. in Engineering Physics and E.E.E.P. (five year program) in the College of Engineering.

There is a broad spectrum of advanced courses available for students majoring in physics. The numbers of undergraduate degrees awarded yearly in physics is about ten, making it possible for all physics majors to become actively involved in one or more of the research programs of the faculty. Advanced laboratory work, in a formally scheduled course or as part of a research group during the summer, is an important part of each undergraduate physics major's program. Most physics majors will continue their studies in physics or a related field at the graduate level.

The department is heavily engaged in graduate education, with about 50 full-time graduate students enrolled at any one time. Many of these students will be employed as part-time teaching assistants in the introductory courses as part of their training. Most of the remainder will be supported as either fellows or research assistants. The department offers both the M.S. and Ph.D. degrees and approximately two-thirds of the graduate students can be expected to continue on to the Ph.D.

The on-going research activities of the twenty or so faculty members include the following: Solid-state physics (experimental and theoretical); Atomic and molecular physics; Plasma spectroscopy; Nuclear theory; Physics of fluids; Statistical physics (experimental and theoretical); Elementary particles (experimental and theoretical); Non-linear optics; and Van de Graaff studies.

Caught on the run at Newark International Airport, Lee Iacocca graciously, though breathlessly, consented to an interview with an intrepid student member of The Epitome staff. It seems that Mr. Iacocca, Lehigh's most famous alumnus and American folk hero, was on his way to last minute preparations for the July 4th celebration of the refurbished Statue of Liberty. It is noteworthy that Mr. Iacocca's famous down-to-earth toughness and pragmatic optimism is tempered in this encounter by a strangely reflective, and somewhat tersely bittersweet, mood. The entire interview lasted only a hurried 17 minutes while Mr. Iacocca was rushing to make a connection at the airport. We present here only the concluding portion of the exchange.

*What? Did I hear you correctly, sir? Did you really say that your only regret is that you didn't double major in Engineering and Religion Studies* when you were at Lehigh? I don't understand . . . I don't . . .*

What's there to understand? The explanation is simple—though I'll admit I didn't feel that way at the time. In fact, I guess, I guess I felt the way most Lehigh students felt: why waste your time on all that artsie stuff. We all took it for granted that it wasn't going to help us get a better job—or, at the time, help the war effort. Now, I think . . .

Yes, Mr. Iacocca, but why Religion Studies?

Well, its really pretty simple. It's something I started to think about the past few years while chairing the Statue of Liberty Commission . . . even when they tried to can me. You know, I almost think in a strange way it was a sort of unconscious reason why I didn't say very much about my years at Lehigh in my best selling autobiography. But you know just thinking about Lady Liberty . . . you know she's a great engineering feat, in fact a pretty damn impressive feat. She's really enough to make any Lehigh, or Chrysler, engineer feel his heart thump right through his plastic pen protector. But you know, there's something more about it, something my father always said . . . but I didn't understand it at the time. And . . . by the way, what are you majoring in at Lehigh?

I'm a business school student with a double major in econometrics and entrepreneurial accounting . . . but please, Mr. Iacocca, so what? I still don't understand why Religion Studies? I just don't understand . . .

Well, maybe like me you'll see later. But listen to me now will you. You know, I think if I don't hurry I'm going to miss Mal Forbes and his helicopter to Ellis . . . Are we still going in the right direction?

Yes, we're all right. We still have a little time . . . and I'm still confused. You're one of the richest and most famous men in America. You invented the Mustang and saved Chrysler. How, Mr. Iacocca, how could you regret not having majored in Religion Studies?

Hey, there's Mal waving. I'm going to have to make it snappy. As I said before, she got me thinking, that giant Lady with the big torch, and you know, I realized that I couldn't make sense out of her. How she was more than a great engineering project. You know, of course, that the French guy back then didn't know anything about CAD-CAM when he designed her. And what about our devotion to Old Lady Liberty. It's a little bit like my father used to say . . . but I'm getting off the point . . . and it's so simple . . . just like what a university is supposed to be. And . . .

Quickly . . . they're calling you to the gate.

It's like this . . . religion—and all that artsie stuff—it really does help us to understand her, and ourselves . . . and the world, the Japanese, Korean messiahs, Jerry Falwell, Bishop Tutu, the Pope and Father Curran, Nuns in central America, Big "Bob", the Wailing Wall and terrorists, Taoists on Wall Street, Kadaffi, Black Ethiopian Jews and Yugo's—thank God they're not minivans—and, and frats at Lehigh and even entrepreneurial accounting—but you'll have to ask Mal Forbes about that. You do understand now, don't you?

No!? (to Mr. Iacocca's departing back) No.

*A smallish, yet feisty, department in the Arts and Science College at Lehigh University that studies the role and significance of religion, throughout world cultures, in all aspects of human endeavor.

Theater

In the first year of the existence of the Theater Department at Lehigh our faculty, staff and students were both busy and productive. We mounted four mainstage productions in the Wilbur Drama Workshop: Our Town, Old Times, A View From the Bridge, and Moonchildren. We hosted a professional actor and director as an artist in residence as well as mounted our first season subscription campaign. Many Lehigh students became season subscribers this year, and we thank them for their support. But mostly, we thank the hundreds of students who spend long evening hours diligently rehearsing, painting or sewing in order to bring our season to its completion.

Urban Studies

Urban Studies is not a major for fainthearted collegians interested in shallow acquaintance with the latest "urban crisis" discovered by the breathless media. We seek to impact a careful analytical grasp of the patterns of life in large human settlements. In the process, we try our best to deliver the classic benefits of a liberal arts education, helping our students to reason more clearly, search more diligently for the truth, and argue more effectively. We combine many disciplines; an Urban Studies major takes courses with economists, architects, historians, anthropologists, political scientists, and perhaps even a geologist. Consequently, ours is a major readily combined with a second ("double") major, most commonly in Architecture, Economics, or Government.

Most of our graduates have entered the business world, which suits us fine.

We think the sort of broad-language liberal education we offer is the best possible preparation for the adventures of the marketplace. Law is the second most popular career choice among Urban Studies majors. Others go into real estate, banking, public service (planning and city management), medicine, and architecture.

We are a small operation and students get to know us well. Several courses include field trips to Philadelphia or New York, and some students choose to spend internship semesters in Philadelphia or Washington for major credit. We are working on a revised curriculum which will greatly simplify the dauntingly complex description of the major found in the catalog. Our philosophy? You spend $16,000 a year to improve your mind and your chances in life. We aim to help our students do both.

The Department of Accounting enjoyed a reputation as one of the strongest and largest programs for undergraduate majors on the campus. Approximately 100 students graduated with 60% or more entering public accounting. Accounting Alumni rose to the highest ranks within their chosen professions. Among the larger public accounting firms, Lehigh alums were partners in each of the well-known firms.

These alumni were also generous when it came to sharing their success with Lehigh. A trip through Drown Hall could find study lounges, classrooms and microcomputer laboratories furnished by graduates of the department.

Also worth mentioning was the recent national accreditation attained for the undergraduate program in accounting. The curriculum leading to a major in accounting was one of 60 nationally accredited programs. The accreditation process of the American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business was a rigorous examination of faculty, course content, students and resources which added additional luster to a program with a long history of success.

The economics major is one of the largest majors in the University, with approximately 120 students in the College of Business and Economics and the College of Arts and Sciences electing the major. The department has an active Economics Society under the direction of Professor Colleen Callahan. The club provides a chance for students and economics faculty to meet informally on a regular basis to discuss current economic issues or aspects of the curriculum. It is also designed to bring in outside economists as speakers and allows for communication of job opportunities for economics majors which come to the attention of the faculty.

Finance

The field of finance is concerned with the transfer of funds from savers to users and the allocation of funds within an enterprise among competing demands for the funds. Attention is also focused on the institutions and instruments necessary to facilitate this transfer of funds. Hence, the Department of Finance offers courses and undertakes research in the areas of Business Finance, Investments, Security Analysis, Portfolio Management, Financial Flows and Markets, Bank Management, Financial Futures and Options and International Financial Management. In this way we have been able to prepare students for attractive careers in the finance function of industrial firms, brokerage houses, banks and other financial intermediaries such as banking, financial analysis, institutional investors and national and international capital markets.

Law and Business

The faculty of the Department of Law and Business consists of Ifeanyi Achebe, who specializes in commercial law, law and internship business; Brian Brockway, who specializes in commercial and tax law; George Nation, who specializes in corporate and commercial law; and Perry Zirkel who specializes in labor and education law. Brockway and Zirkel are senior faculty, both of whom are at the distinguished level of "University Professor." Achebe and Nation are assistant professors, who add breadth and growth to the teaching, research and service activities of the department.

The department provides a range of courses, from the popular university-wide offering in Introduction to Law to advanced graduate-level courses in Commercial Law.

In the research area, the faculty continues to increase their production of publications in national journals.

Marketing

Marketing embraces a wide range of career opportunities. Most of these careers are challenging — and well paid. Far from being restricted to marketing majors, marketing offers opportunities for students from a wide variety of disciplines. Students who look ahead to a possible marketing career can combine marketing courses and marketing experience with other fields — marketing with engineering, for example, for a career in technical sales, or marketing with psychology, or economics, or marketing with a general M.B.A. Marketing is a pervasive activity; there is no area of human endeavor that can do without it. And in our world of global competition, marketing has become even more important than in the past.

Lehigh University students further their understanding of marketing and career preparation by joining the Lehigh Marketing Club, taking the basic marketing course and a few electives or by majoring in marketing.

This has been an exciting year for the Chemical Engineering Department. First, we completed our move to the Mountaintop Campus facility. Here we occupy about one third of Building A, the 200,000 square foot flagship building that contains offices, classrooms, and laboratories. Additional pilot plant facilities will occupy approximately 10,000 square feet of the adjacent Building H, the engineering-test building. Left behind in Whitaker is the Unit Operations Laboratory, a satellite office, and some faculty offices. This will not be for long since expansion plans call for additional space to move the undergraduate chemical engineering laboratories and projects to the Mountaintop campus within the next few years. The move has allowed the consolidation in a single facility of most of the Chemical Engineering faculty and students by bringing together the Emulsion Polymers Institute, the Process Modeling and Control Center, the Bioprocessing Institute and the Thermo-fluids Institute. In addition to the attractive surroundings, the larger offices, a new commons room, and site library provide a pleasant atmosphere that favors the interaction between graduate and undergraduate students and faculty.

The completion of the Unit Operations Laboratory renovation was the happy culmination of a significant effort by our faculty and external sponsors to provide a state-of-the-art environment for undergraduate education. We have a number of new challenging experimental units, including, among others, a gas membrane separation unit, a refrigeration cycle, a Joule-Thompson unit, a hydrolysis plug flow and CSTR reactor system, a boiling loop, and heat exchanger experiment. All of these experiments have state-of-the-art instrumentation and some of them are equipped with microcomputers for data acquisition and analysis. This also provided an opportunity to retire some experiments that had been with us for a long time and served us well, but may not be missed by either students or faculty.

The Graduate Program continued the steady progress of the last few years. Last year alone we graduated about 14 Ph.D. Chemical Engineers. This, combined with the size of our graduate population (about 100), faculty (about 20), and research budget, puts the Department among the very large and prestigious ChE departments in the nation. A further boost to this effort was the award to the Department of a grant from the U.S. Department of Education for a large number of graduate fellowships. This award, obtained in competition with about 700 proposals from some two hundred universities, will support five new students per year and will dramatically enhance our competitive position.

Professors Leonard A. Wenzel and Curtis W. Clump retired from the active ranks. There are few words that can describe Dr. Wenzel's contributions to our Department, both as a Chairman and as "journeyman" faculty. The same goes for Dean Clump for his teaching and steady guidance for undergraduates while in the Dean's office. These feelings were unanimously expressed by the large attendance at the farewell dinner. Regardless of the feelings, and except for occasional forays into exotic places like Alaska or Kenya, they seem to be using their emeritus status to remain as active in the Department as ever. This is, indeed, good news.

We were also happy to welcome our youngest faculty, Dr. Harvey Stenger, to the ranks of the tenured associate professors. Dr. Stenger is active in the fields of Catalysis and Microelectronics Fabrication and provided a final push for the completion of the Unit Operations Laboratory. He was a recipient of the Alfred Nobel Robinson Award for excellence in Teaching, Scholarship, and Service to the University.

Dr. John C. Chen, our Chairman, was awarded the Donald Q. Kern Award for his contribution to Heat Transfer. This award, jointly sponsored by the AIChE and the ASME, is one of the most distinguished in a field that has attracted some of the best engineering minds.

The Computer Science and Electrical Engineering Department is the largest academic department at Lehigh with about 450 undergraduates (sophomore to senior) and 217 graduate students, of which 90 are full time. The CSEE curricula within the College of Engineering and Applied Science are accredited in Electrical Engineering, Computer Engineering and Computer Science. These disciplines are central to the national effort to deal with the issues of international competitiveness. They range from the fundamental design and theoretical aspects of engineering to computer and informational systems required to manage and transform major production or administratively orientated enterprises.

Active faculty review of the undergraduate program assures timely response to meet the demands of the rapid progress in our disciplines. Equally important has been a recognition for the need to provide more opportunities for students to meet and work with faculty members in less formal settings. These include working with student organizations such as IEEE student branch and an Artificial Intelligence student group. A faculty committee works actively to increase these interactions, with, for example, special orientation days for sophomores and with more activities of a similar nature.

Computer facilities have been expanded significantly by a recent AT&T award to strengthen our UNIX environment through a second 3B15 superminicomputer as well as sixteen graphics terminals. Beyond this are departmental Intel, Sun, Tektronix, Valid and Hewlett Packard workstations for both instructional and research use. Opportunities exist for undergraduates to participate in these activities.

Research activities include extensive facilities and work in semiconductor devices including silicon processing facilities within Fairchild Laboratory, broad electronic design including both VLSI and high frequency microwave circuits, error-correction coding theory, computer networking, parallel architectures, computer expert systems and artificial intelligence.

There was a lot going on within the Department of Materials Science and Engineering during this past year. Professor Richard W. Hertzberg returned from his sabbatical leave in July and immediately set about the task of restructuring the undergraduate curriculum. The goal will be to provide each student with a core of courses in metals, ceramics, plastics and electronic materials and then permitting the student the opportunity to specialize further in one of these areas during their senior year. The revised curriculum moved along nicely and may be in place within the year after receiving the approval from various advisory bodies on campus. In making these changes, the department faculty consulted with their visiting committee of advisors as well as with other leaders from industry.

At the same time, the department took the first steps toward upgrading the undergraduate teaching laboratories. The metallography labs received some much needed attention but much remains to be done. A light optical microscope was purchased for use by undergraduates with the new image analysis laboratory. The latter new facility includes four MacIntosh II computer, optical scanner, digitizing tablet and associated software. This computer facility will be linked with new optical microscope and the department's electron microscope facility for the purpose of quantitative image analysis and digitized storage of microscopic images and associated data. This new laboratory is truly a state-of-the-art facility and will greatly benefit both our undergraduate and graduate teaching and research activities.

Research activities in ceramics, electron optics, fracture of metals, polymers, ceramics, and composites, superconduc-tivity, and metal forming continue at a high level with most faculty involved in one or more research projects. True to the spirit of cooperation within the department, many of these projects are directed by a team of professors.

The quality of the faculty has been recognized by professional organizations with Professor David B. Williams awarded Fellow status with ASM International. Professors Chou and Avitzur shared the Blackall Award from ASME. Professor Hertzberg completed the third edition of his textbook which is used in MAT 218.

A number of undergraduate students in the department are scholarship recipients. These students are Ann Bolcavage ('89), Sarah Hayward ('89), Stacey Slabik ('89), William Rossi ('90), Michael Walmer ('90), Judy Chow ('91), Marc Leuzzi ('91), Brian McDonald ('91), Sandra Stelling ('91), and Sandra Verish ('91).

The past four years seemed like an eternity to wait when I was a freshman. Now my picture is in this book as a graduating senior. What has happened to the time?

The last time I looked there were still two programs due in Engineering I. Or am I confusing that with the homework assignments for Adam's probability course? No, now that I think about it, the assignment was the jig and fixture design for Groover and Odrey and Tonkay. How about that plant layout project for Richardson; whoever heard of making ice machines in a triangular plant? That was fun, but furious.

It was great in the senior year moving into Mohler Lab. It is much easier to find, the faculty now but it is much harder to hide from them when Kane is looking for someone for project presentation. I hope I have all that computerized planning that Wiginton and Wu and Zimmers were thinking about down pat because it sounds like the company is going to expect me to know that. I can't forget what Storer told us about quality control, I just know that's the first thing they're going to ask me about when I get to work. No, I know they're going to ask me about those mathematical models that Plebani and Thomas and Wilson kept after me about, or is it going to be those microprocesses that Sathya keeps saying are the wave of the future? I can't be sure! Maybe I better go to graduate school. No! Get a hold of yourself, it's time to go to work, seventeen years of school is enough! Everybody else looks confident and self assured. I know I know as much as they do. If not, at least I'll tell them that. Time to go, see you at our tenth reunion!

The faculty welcomed this year a new addition, Professor Antonios Liakopoulos, in the area of thermofluids, who came to us from System Dynamics Incorporated, Florida. The year was also highlighted by the move of a number of faculty to Packard Laboratory who now occupy space previously allocated to the Industrial Engineering Department. In addition, shop facilities were moved to the ground floor and a general relocation and upgrading of laboratories is underway. On sabbatical were Professor D. Gary Harlow, at the Naval Postgraduate School, Monterey, California; Professor Kyra Stephanoff, under a Women Professor Visiting Fellowship at Cornell University; and Professor George Sih, on internal leave to devote full time to research. Three endowed Professorships were awarded: Professor Fazil Erdogan was appointed G. Whitney Snyder Professor, and Professors Donald O. Rockwell and Robert P. Wei were appointed Paul B. Reinhold Professorships. Professor Bruce Murray resigned from the faculty to take a position with the National Institute of Standards and Technology (National Bureau of Standards) in Washington.

INTERNATIONAL CLUB

The International Club, one of the largest on the Lehigh campus, is an association that aims to present the world's variety of cultures to the Lehigh campus. The club, which has American as well as international members, organizes a series of events to introduce people to the home cultures of our international students. The year's highlight is the International Dinner, in which many of our members cook authentic national dishes and present cultural performances. Other events include a festival of foreign films and guest lectures.

The International Club also acts as a forum for the concerns of international students. To this end, we have increased contact with the international association of other east coast universities to discuss issues of common concern to foreign students and to devise new ways in which Lehigh can help its own international students.

BLACK STUDENTS UNION

The Black Students Union is an organization established to foster Black unity, pride, and cultural awareness within our university and community, through social and political functions. Activities throughout the year have included:

The celebration of Kwanzaa

Trips to the Smithsonian Museum of African Art

Annual Unity Dinner

Selected speakers such as:

Dr. Naim Akbar (noted Psychologist)
Attalah Shabazz (daughter of the late Malcolm X)

Rev. Buster Soares (Youth Coordinator and coordinator of Operation PUSH)

Rev. Ralph Abernathy (Pastor of Ebenezer Baptist Church in Atlanta, Georgia, and noted Civil Rights activist)

Motown Revue (talent show featuring music from the Motown era — the 1960's and 1970's)

Any student interested in the promotion of the goals of the BSU may gain membership.

Our goal as an organization, among other things, is to have the many noteworthy achievements of African-Americans recognized. We are very proud of our history! Thank you Marcus Garvey, Sojourner Truth, Paul Robeson, Chaka Zulu, Rosa Parks, Imhotep, Malcolm X, Cleopatra, and all of the African-American graduates of Lehigh, who came before us to make our path a little easier!

Missing: Lisa Silver (Sales Mgr.), Laura Schifflin (Advertising Mgr.), Jamie Wallace (Academics Ed.), Susan Marra (Living Ed.), Teresa Bzdek (Seniors Ed.).

With the school year far gone comes the appearance of another Epitome. As always, the book came together as a result of much time, care, and arguments by the fine people who comprised the staff of The Epitome. Through the many bottles of aspirin, the endless shouting competitions, and the too few compliments uttered, we are proud of this book and find it worthy of being placed next to those yearbooks that have preceded it.

Of course, all good things must come to an end, and so we say goodbye to everyone in the Class of 1989, who are now allowed to pass Go and move on to a life outside of Bethlehem, Pennsylvania. They have earned their degrees, and our respect along the way as well, so now they must pass as adults with a sense of responsibility and a mind for diligence. Leaving with them are five of our finest editors, who gave so much of their time and helped this book to be the best it could be.

Given the dubious honor of leader, guide, and miracle-maker was Lisa Bohlitsky, who always held her head high and wore a smile on her face (even though most of the time there was nothing to smile about). With her as Editor-in-Chief, The Epitome got a new look, some new ideas, and a new sense of innovation while still holding on to the steadfast traditions that make Lehigh the university it is. To the woman who was always there to lend support and be a friend, we wish you, Lisa, luck as you enter the real world of engineering, and, more importantly, may you NEVER experience stress as you knew it while creating this book.

Heading up the business end of The Epitome was Stephanie Fallone, who managed the influx of funds so well that we took in even more money than last year. (Now that's a difficult task!) Her accomplishments in this endeavor, as well as in academics, promises to pay off in her accounting job in New York. We send you on your way with many wishes of good luck and success.

Another prominent female well on her way (of getting out of Lehigh, that is) is Karin Cholak, our beloved Sports Editor. Miraculously, she completed the entire sports section on her own, continuing the tradition recently begun on The Epitome's staff, which is to have one person work alone on sports, and having that person be a female. With her at the sports helm, we had nothing to worry about, and we profusely thank you, Karin, for producing such excellent work under such duress.

Also working under none-too-pleasant conditions was the effervescent Debbie Davidson. As Assistant Photography Editor, she did her best with the quality of material handed to her, but in the end she finished her job accurately, with the fewest possible complications, and got the photographs in on time (well, almost on time). We thank you too, Deb, and know you will work as hard for a real establishment as you did for The Epitome.

Finally, we did it before but we have to do it again, goodbye to Joe Devito, who snuck back for another semester of fun in the Bethlehem air (you just couldn't stay away, could you, Joe?) This time around, Joe was Academics Editor and, as always, did an impeccable job with his section. Well, now, for the last time, goodbye, thanks for all you have done, we really appreciated the help — but be on your way to law school already!

All in all, did we get some calls from irate parents? Yes. Did we yell a lot? Oh yeah. Did we miss some deadlines? Plenty of them. But did we have fun? You bet, and that makes it all worth it. We hope you enjoy this book and are pleased with it as much as we are proud of it.

Jazz band enchants Mountaintop

"Isn't it Romantic?" celebrates age when "swing was king"

By MIKE NELSON
Brown and White A&L Writer

Remember when "big band was grand and swing was king?" Although the members of the Lehigh Jazz Ensemble had not yet been born then, at "The Mountaintop Ballroom."

Led by Visiting Assistant Professor of Music Jung-Ho Pak, the ensemble treated more than 170 members of the Lehigh community to a display of musical talent. The ballroom's "Isn't it Romantic" complements the Lehigh Jazz Ensemble's "Isn't it Romantic?"

and sincerity rarely seen in a college jazz ensemble, especially considering that the songs were written 20 or 30 years before our time," also saxophonist Eric Waxman, '90, said.

Led by Pak, the ensemble played favorites as "String of Pearls," "For Judy," "Take the A Train," "One O'Clock Jump" to a few from its three-set, 33-minute concert.

and Steve Tranchida, '92, on trumpet. On Saturday night, the Jazz Ensemble traveled to Hazleton, Pa., to participate in an American Cancer Society Telethon. From 6 to 10 p.m., the ensemble played most of the songs performed at the Mountaintop concert, which was televised on a regional cable television station.

With the help of the jazz band, the telethon raised...

'Brown and White' gives five marks of distinction

The Associated Collegiate Press recently awarded The Brown and White All American status with five out of five marks of distinction for the fall semester.

The Associated Collegiate Press has been evaluating student publications for more than 60 years, providing student journalists with an outside opinion of their work and how to improve it.

In the five scoring sections of coverage and content, writing and editing, opinion content, design and photography, and art and graphics, The Brown and White received marks of "excellent" and "superior" for several of the scoring subcategories.

The marks of distinction are awarded to publications "exhibiting lively, appealing, imaginative, creative work showing special personality," according to the Associated Collegiate Press Newspaper Guidebook.

The newspaper was awarded bonus points in several sections, such as the editorial cartoons, sports coverage and scope of sources used. Extra points were also awarded for the amount of student work which goes into the production of the newspaper.

Senior Eric Rothenberg, editor-in-chief of The Brown and White for the fall semester said, "Our success can be directly attributed to the hard work and dedication of all the students who spend countless hours of their personal time to put out the paper each week."

basketball tandem in Lehigh. Daren Queenan and Mike Polaha had their jersey numbers retired before the men's basketball game on Saturday.

High School, scored 2,703 points in his collegiate career, a Lehigh and ECC record, which is the 12th-highest total in NCAA Division I history. He also holds a plethora of other Lehigh records, including career rebounds with 1,013.

He was among the last cuts of the Houston Rockets of the National Basketball Association and is currently playing for the Charleston Gunners of the Continental Basketball Association after being drafted in the sixth round of the CBA draft. He is averaging over 22 points and nearly eight rebounds a game for the Gunners.

"He's been the surprise of the year," said former NBA coach George Karl, coach of the Albany Patroons and the CBA All-Stars, in an interview with the Philadelphia Daily News. It didn't take too long for the rest of us to find out that he could flat-out play. Now, we try to figure out ways to stop him.

On New Year's Eve, Queenan topped the 4 All-Star squad, scoring 15 points in a 103-88 victory over the host Rockford Lightning. Before the game, Queenan won the CBA slam-dunk contest against five other players. He crushed David Wood in the finals of the slam-dunk contest, 3 points to 56.

Queenan's all-expenses paid trip for his efforts in the slam-dunk contest will be aired on the Lehigh radio network on March 10, 12 a.m.; March 25, 3:30 a.m. and March 26, 3:30 a.m.

Top Ten List:

- Why does LU raise its tuition by more than $1,000 every year?
10. To make the mastery of Nintendo games an undergraduate distribution requirement and a prerequisite for a computer science degree.
  9. While we're at it, to make Lehigh's video arcade the best in the country.
  8. Raising late fees from $25 to $50 doesn't quite cut it.
  7. The ticket lady isn't reaching the optimum citation level.
  6. To try to shed its "non-profit organization" status.
  5. The cut from the bookstore isn't quite large enough.
  4. $20,000 a year by 1990 is a nice round number.
  3. LU Alumni vanity license plate rates are escalating at an alarming pace.
  2. Legal counsel doesn't come cheap.
  1. To keep up with the notion that Lehigh is an Ivy League school, and its diploma commands the same type of respect.

MARCHIN' 97

Lehigh University's Marchin' 97 has been part of Brown and White football tradition for more than three decades. This year the tradition continues as the band moved over the mountain to its new home in the Philip Rauch Field House. This new home put the band's facilities in close proximity to the new Murray H. Goodman Stadium. The new home also proved to be a good platform from which the band could travel to the two closest away games other than the traditional Lehigh-Lafayette game: William & Mary in Virginia, and Northeastern in Boston.

With the aid of director/advisor C.J. Hamman, students organize all aspects of their performances, from writing the shows to conducting field rehearsals, and playing in the stands. The Band is managed by Jim Kolberg ('89), with the assistance of Drum Major Daemon Heckmon ('89), and Student Conductor Ed Allen ('89), who conducts the music in the stands. Assistant managers include Senior Representative and Freshman Manager Steve Kohl ('89), Staff Assistant Caren Rosenberg ('89), Librarian David Long ('88), Instruments and Uniform Manager Tina Minor ('90), and Publicity Manager Jeff Baker ('89).

Lehigh emerged from its first winning season (6-5) since 1983 ranked number one nationally in NCAA I-AA ranks for passing offense, 330.1 yards per game, and total offense, 485.6 yards per game. The Brown and White was sixth in scoring, 31.9 points per game, and twelfth in punt returns with an 11.4-yard mark.

The Brown and White set season records for most yards passing (3,631), topping a 3,026 mark set in 1973, and in total offense (5,341 yards), bettering a 1975 total of 5,037. The records for passing offense and total offense, 330.1 and 485.6, surpasses school standards of 275.1 for passing yards set in 1973 and 457.9 for total yards established in 1975.

The Engineers of 1988-89, with former associate coach Tom Hutchinson in his first season as the successor to Thad Turner, who stepped down after 18 years as head coach, experienced a frustrating 4-12 campaign. Hutchinson had a strong opening line-up but lacked necessary depth when injuries to key men depleted his team.

Dual victories came over Cornell, Wilkes, Brown and Franklin & Marshall. There were losses to Iowa, Penn State, Oklahoma, NCAA champion Oklahoma State, Michigan, Pittsburgh, Army, Iowa State, Navy, Syracuse, Edinboro and Cleveland State. Forfeits at one or two of the weight classes, because of injuries, were too much to overcome in some of those setbacks.

The Engineers won their own Sheridan Tournament, finished second in the EIWAs, fourth in the Mat-Town USA test at Lock Haven, Pa., and 32nd in the NCAA tourney.

Basketball

First-year coach David Duke fashioned a 10-18 record (5-9 in the ECC) with only one returning starter (Layer) from the 1987-88 league championship quintet which lost to Temple in the NCAA tournament.

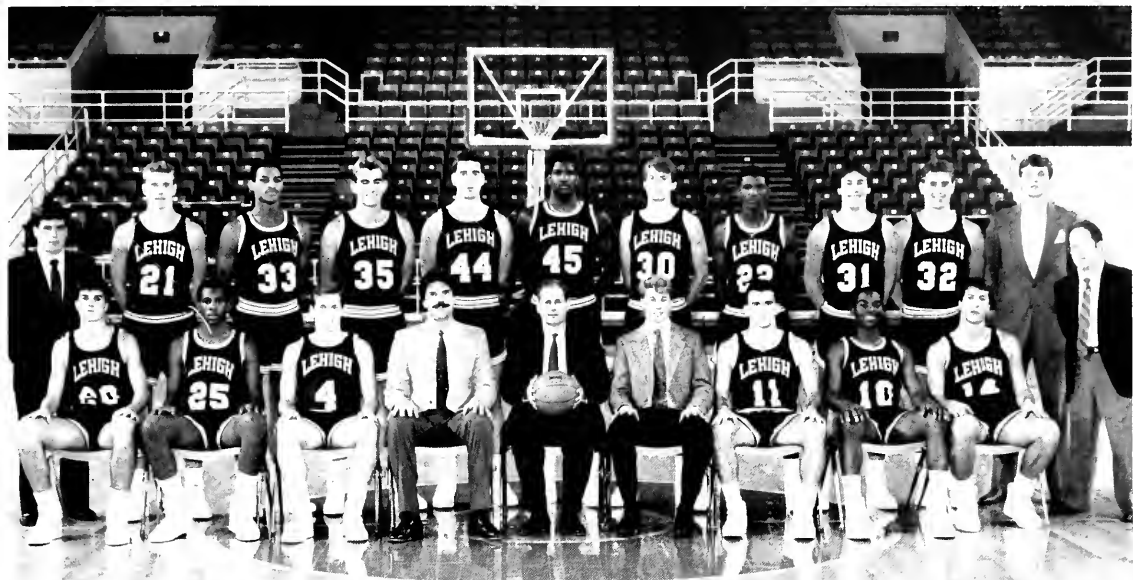

The Engineers played in seven games decided by one shot or less, and dropped five of them, largely due to inexperience. Those setbacks came against Jacksonville, Colgate, Brown, Penn State and Hofstra. They took photo-finish decisions over Army and Drexel.

In addition an overtime loss against Lafayette, although eventually by a 75-65 margin, came only after a missed free throw in the final second of regulation time cost them a victory and necessitated an extra period.

Living On Campus

Living on campus is something every Lehigh student has in common, at least for their freshman year. Everyone remembers moving-in day, checking out the dorm room with mom and dad. "This is it? Is it really this small? You mean I have to share this closet with my roommate?"

Of course we all learned to adjust with the help of our gryphon, and many of us came to love our little rooms as well as our roommates.

When the time came to say goodbye at the end of freshman year, we said we were glad to be out of there - we were on to bigger and better rooms. But perhaps inside we knew we'd miss that little room, our first try at dorm living.

Whether we lived in Centennials, the Quad, M & M, or Taylor College, we came to know the advantages of residence hall life - gryphons to help us out, a meal plan to feed us, maids to keep our new homes clean and orderly.

Living on campus keeps us in touch with university life and closer to our friends. If we were lucky enough to get housing in Trembley or Brodhead as upperclassmen, we benefitted from the advantages of university housing while getting a taste of the independence of apartment life.

Living Off Campus

The "real" world. Many Lehigh students living off-campus get a taste of it as upperclassmen before graduation, when all students must face living and working on their own. The switch from dorm life to off-campus housing involves both positive and negative aspects which must be considered before the decision is made.

The most positive factor influencing the move from M & M to Montclair is privacy. Typically, a group of about five students share a three-story house, giving them the opportunity to socialize with their housemates or seek refuge in their room as they choose. The study atmosphere also plays a large role, as a house is usually much quieter than a dorm hall.

Another plus is the new opportunity to cook one's own meals. Many students choose to combine the meal plan with their own menu, as eating on campus allows them to maintain contact with university life.

Living off-campus does have its downsides. Along with the absence of maids and gryphons comes the responsibilities of cleaning and paying bills. It is hard to imagine just how much those utilities add up to, but off-campus students quickly learn. The somewhat painful responsibility of budgeting money and maintaining an entire house is slowly learned throughout the year.

Other disadvantageous point is that off-campus students are somewhat separated from the university. Informational notices and party signs posted in most dorms are often unseen by those living off campus.

Despite the negatives, living off-campus is an overall great learning experience leaving the student with many good memories and a small but meaningful taste of the "real" world.

Living In A Fraternity

Fraternity life is the traditional choice of housing among Lehigh men. With the recolonization of Delta Sigma Phi in the fall of 1988, a total of 32 fraternity houses exists both on and off campus, and the fact that over 50 percent of Lehigh males live in them comes as no surprise.

Most men find Greek life to be the most attractive lifestyle at Lehigh because fraternity houses can offer so much more than a dorm room or even a house off-campus. All the comforts of home are prevalent - meals are cooked and served to fraternity brothers right in their house, cable television, phones and a computer jack are accessible in every bedroom, and many houses have pay TV channels, free weights, a pool table, and a computer.

Perhaps the most attractive reason to choose living in a fraternity house is the huge extent of social activity centered around the Hill. But there is a deeper reason which makes it the right choice for many men - the existence of a close, family-like atmosphere which makes the fraternity members brothers as well as friends.

Living in a house adds a new meaning to college life. A pledge or brother learns responsibility to himself and to the other members in the house. Fraternity members find that living with so many different people from varied backgrounds enhances the special bond that exists between them.

The kap seniors remember: freshman orientation weekends, meeting pledge brothers on bid night, dragging a sleeping RoFlo from party room hallway, Slambeast in the Sped pool, room games, watermelon slides, case day, civil war parties, grain punch, pubnights, bed races, beer pong, balcony blows, imported beer, fun parties, "She swallowed for you?", Frank and the Rainbow Coalition: "Do you wanna see my bombers?", Lehmann's terms: "How much? Just SAY it!", the first away football game: a lost tradition, tossing cookies in the P-Suite, fish for dinner . . . again, chunky, but cute, Sorority Nights at KA, the SMAGS raid: Kappa Alpha Squiggle, "I hope they send some cute ones next time", the three wise men, Dake and the Amazon: bringing back white supremacy to the NBA, Steve Lee in the dumpster, Joe Daly's friends, Garbage Dick, Bas hitting speed bumps in the phone room, Stittler Youth, Zed: keeper of the cave, throwing peanuts at the beast, push-ups in the Den of Sin, "When I was a pledge . . .", the last annual viking dinner, funnelating leftovers at Delta Fire, Goonie, Rudy, and cooke: the K-AAA, "legal underage drinking", Road-trip One, Captain Sweats and the soda deficit, "Carbs, is this Pike?", stiff neck at the Brass Rail, surfer dude, "Have you seen the kaps from V.D.?", Rudy in leg shackles, wall paneling, VJ's mother and Schneiders' mom, "I'm not going to sing.", the Gamma Force, Ode to Trembley 28, ALF gets a Schneids attack, Lehmann surfs the belly swell, Foy Manson munching rug, Goo the Babble-Master: "Alane said I'm wearing a tux.", free pitchers from Donna at the Ho, "J: are you a urinal or what?", Shake 'n' bake Dake: the quakin' fake snake, Born to Bone, "You broke up with Jenny . . . again?", Bas and the Engineers Song, "Upper hall sucks!" . . . "Lower hall swallows.", S+ + in the T+ +. The kap seniors forget: the kap condom machine, Jason Krivy and the fruit flies, Heilke, the beast's real name. Random comments: "Flashdance" Steinberg Who dresses you? Madigan: Smoke my bat Kirsch: Gillette's mustache is better than yours. Yavo: Three's company. Squid: (Math 22 X 5) + 44 = I.U.P. Ski: You've got sloppy 222nds. Obi-Joe Kenbodi: May the clue be with you. The LC? . . . Well, maybe they're good for the house gpa. Who cares where Venezeula is? . . . or Tokyo, for that matter. Fat, drunk and stupid is no way to go throughlife. Wolfe? . . . he was a brother before we reconized. Read "In the Beginning" again. You're a great bunch of guys . . . we feel very strongly about this. K + 1 + s brevity! Twelve minus five equals us: Glide, J, Dake, Scoop, Jeff, Frank, and Bas (absent: Wooley, Yavo, Barry Paraah, and ?). Written in the Tally Ho Kappa Beta Phi room, 2/23/89

Living In A Sorority

The women involved in Lehigh's Greek system cite sorority life as one of their most memorable and rewarding experiences in college. The special ties between the sisters is what sets the sorority house apart from ordinary dorms, and really turns the house into a home.

The colonization of Alpha Chi Omega and Delta Zeta in the fall of 1988 strengthened the sorority system and gave many more women the opportunity to experience Greek life. Like their six predecessors, these new Panhel members will be housed in Saucon Village until housing more central to the main campus can be obtained. Alpha Gamma Delta, Alpha Omicron Pi, Alpha Phi, Delta Gamma, Gamma Phi Beta, and Kappa Alpha Theta presently reside in Upper Centennials.

Sorority women are required to live in their chapter house for one year, usually when they are sophomores. Pledges and new sisters find this a time to really become close with the older sisters and each other and to learn the give and take of sorority life.

When asked what they like most about living in a sorority, most women will agree that it is a place to be yourself, a "home away from home" where the friendship and love between the sisters is irreplaceable.

After graduation, the chapter house takes on a new role - a place to come back to. Sisterhood is for a lifetime, and whether an alumna has been out of school for one year or ten, she can always return to her sorority house and be welcomed by her sisters.

Alpha Chi Omega - the founding 76; Do you like your neighbor? It's that time of the month again. Did you get the phone chain? Who needs hazing when we have rush. Maybe we'll go out sometime - if you're lucky. Shutup! Do you haze yourself? OK - who ate the fondue? Does anyone remember the Wild Wild West? Where are the buses? Blind date bowling. Cocktails on the runway. Tri-Star Formal. Say Spew Dah Ball. Alpha Abetical Omega. UC303 is our home. What housing problem? Vanilla! OK - who's going to take the frames? I'm SO proud of you girls. Clapping practice. You ALL failed the initiation exam. Pledge Master Sister means P.M.S. Think Pink! The pledge master gave the president a black eye - what's she going to do to us? I'm sorry officer - I'm unfamiliar with the area. So many boys, so little time. DD and her Chi Psi pledges move down the halls of DU. Naked Sprints. Big Pete. Gabi - H.O.L. Judy kisses lizzard face. Jessie - "the flasher". Marnie - is that your first Theta Xi hookup? Janet - so red hair and wildness do go together. Laura - pretty quick recovery. Jill goes down in the elevator. Jules - can we play with your computer? Deb J. - is he your boyfriend or not? Kathy = "Mrs. Sing-A-Long". Debby B. - "Lights, camera, action!" Janet learns to bowl - now all we have to do is teach her how to stand.

Celeste - why can't I be in charge of the little pledges? You mean he has a girlfriend? Gabi - "we only talked in his room, really!". Marnie - watch those P.D.A.'s. Debbie D. likes younger men who sleep in the buff. Kathy wakes up at Lafayette. Kristen gets snagged at Theta Delt. You'd think it would be big - well it's not (no one fools Gabi) Kathy - 5 in one night? Jules leaves her imprint in peanut butter. No more S.O.S. Best of luck to our seniors - we'll miss you! Janet, Debby, Jill, Jules, Kristen, Gabi, Celeste, Marnie, Judy, Kathy, Debbie D., Debbie J., Jessie and Laura!

In Closing

Over the past four years, many of my friends have asked me why have I spent so much of my time working on the yearbook staff. After all, why would an electrical engineer be interested in the world of publishing? The reason was that I simply enjoyed it and was proud to be a member of a group who recorded the history of Lehigh for prosperity. After all, if a person wanted to view what Lehigh was like in 1989; where else would they turn but to The Epitome.

Flipping through the pages of The 1989 Epitome will bring back unique memories to each person. I hope the members of this year's staff will recall the same feeling of accomplishment which they felt when the last page of their section was finally completed. Perhaps even the memories of the long and tedious hours, the numerous complaints, and the photographs which never seemed to be there when needed will be looked upon with a smile.

Much of the time this past year was spent experimenting with new ideas in order to make this year's Epitome uniquely different from any of the previous Lehigh yearbooks. Our goal was to incorporate these innovative changes into the book while ensuring that the traditions of the past, which each Lehigh student cares deeply about, were upheld. I believe this combination of tradition and creativity has made this Epitome one which we can all be proud.

Trying to find the appropriate words to bring this book to a close is the most difficult thing that I've had to do for The Epitome. I don't believe that there are words that can sum up all of the work and effort that was put into this yearbook. The end result—The 1989 Epitome—was due to the collaboration of 24 hard working individuals. To each of them I say thank-you and to each of you I say enjoy.

Colophon

Volume 113 of The Epitome, 1989 edition, the official yearbook of Lehigh University, was printed by Jostens — Printing and Publishing Division, State College, Pennsylvania, using that offset lithography process. The paper is primarily #80 Gloss with black ink. Color pages used #110 Kromkote paper.

Cover: The cover, made of a Matte Black material with a gold foil logo. A hot foil design of the Alumni Memorial building of Lehigh University is embossed on the cover. The cover was designed by The Epitome and drawn by Jostens.

Headlines and Copy: Palatino typeface was used for the majority of the book except for the community section which used Times Roman for the ads for grads and Benguiat Book for the advertisements. Body copy was set in 10 point while captions were set in 8 point. Headline size varied throughout the book.

Color: All separations were performed using Hell-laser scanners from color prints. A second color, Rose, was used in the features section.

Photographs: Photographs are the work of The Epitome and The Brown and White staff photographers. These photographers are: T. Caciolo, S. Clay, T. Crofton, D. Elton, P.J. Freidenrich, B. Glassman, A. Griff, L. Havey, A. Helminski, Y. Hong, K. Kunsman, J. Ryan, D. Vujerich, C. West

The senior portraits were taken by Merin Studios, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. Athletic teams were photographed and supplied by courtesy of Ryan Studios, Bethlehem, Pennsylvania. The fraternity and sorority composites were taken by Fraternal Composite Services.

Thanks

Nancy Howard: I don't think that you knew what you were getting yourself into two years ago when you walked into the yearbook office, and I convinced you to join the staff. I'm glad that you accepted the position because I don't know what I would have done without you and all of your help. Don't worry about next year because you will do a great job! WE DID IT!!!!

Stephanie Fallone: At times it seemed that we wouldn't have enough funds to cover the cost of this book; but because of your business knowledge, we ended up just fine. Good luck in the world of accounting and thanks for all of your help.

Laura Schiffin and Lisa Silver: The heart of the business staff. Whenever we needed additional funds, you could always be depended upon to jump in and help raise them. I know that under your leadership, next year's yearbook will be financially fine.

Meghan Rowe and Andrea Trapnell: In a year of great change at Lehigh, you managed to encompass everything into 56 pages. Thanks for taking the most difficult section of the book and making it look terrific.

Joe DeVito and Jamie Wallace: What can I say about the two people who did everything on time. It was nice to know there were those who actually did what I asked. Thanks. Jamie, continue the good work; and Joe, well our time is finally over, time for someone new.

Corey Abate and Beth Cottingham: Once again the team was back to do the Activities section. I don't know what they will do next year without the two of you. Bech, good luck with whatever you do in the future. Corey, the yearbook is going to be better than ever with you and Nancy in charge.

Karin Cholak: I don't know how you managed to do the entire Sports section by yourself, but you did and it looks great! Just think, no more having to track Young down. Good luck in the future and thanks. The Epitome will miss you.

Sue Marra, Amy Wilkowie and Nancy Fitzgerald: You succeeded with the section of the book that generates the most hassles than any other. I appreciate your hard work and patience during those trying months when you just wanted to give up. I want you to know that all that hard work paid off.

Teresa Bzdek and Sue Moebus: After going through 890 senior portraits and activities listings, the section is finally done. Teresa, you really did an outstanding job. You went out of your way to make the section work. I'm sure that you will be pleased by the results. Debbie Davidson and Tom Crofton: Our photo staff. I don't know what to say to the both of you but thanks. I know that at times we ran into major problems; but in the end, the photography in the book is great.

Steve Merin and Merin Studios: Thanks for getting all of our photos to us without delay. They look great!

Phil Klein: You were always there when I needed you. You would listen to our ideas and improve on them to make the 1989 Epitome the best book ever. Many thanks. It was a great pleasure to work with you.

Professor Gorney: You allowed us to try out many new ideas this year without letting us over do it. I appreciated all of your help, and I hope that you are as proud of this book as we are.

Pam Mongi: You were there to help me out whenever I needed you. I am very grateful. Linda Lipko: I don't know what I would have done without you!!! If I ever had a problem, you were there to listen and to help whenever you could. You did everything from helping to keep our finances straight to typing the Senior section.

What more can I say to you but THANK YOU!!!
